John Leslie Hunt : Service slang,: A first selection, before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Service slang,: A first selection,:

Desperate to avoid 'bubble-dancing', join the 'dromestoners' or eat a nice 'tiddly oggy'? Baffled? Well, pull yourself out of the 'asparagus bed' and dip into Service Slang to find out what these expressions and many more mean. First published in 1943, this is a facsimile reissue, complete with the original witty illustrations. You would be a 'sad apple' to call it a dictionary, it is more a light-hearted survey of expressions prevalent in the Army, Navy and R.A.F. during the Second World War. 'Chocks away' and 'draw your pint'.

About the Author Flying-Officer J. L. Hunt and Lieutenant A. G. Pringle collected and edited Service Slang in 1943.
