I write the DATE the book was loaned out on the bookmark - a good reminder for the borrower. These make great inexpensive gifts. 16 of 16 people found the following review helpful. A useful tool for perennial book lenders. By A Customer This handy device consists of a bound set of bookmarks with stubs. Slip a bookmark, with your name added, in each book you lend someone, then write their name on the stub. It reminds them to return your book and gives you a record of borrowings. Very clever. These would make wonderful gifts for teachers or professors who lend books all the time. 5 of 5 people found the following review helpful. This is GREAT! By Rev. Dr. Steven Goodwin As a pastor I loan out books from my library all the time. Invariably, though you would think I would have learned better by know, I forget two weeks later who I loaned it too. This little gem is of inestimable value for helping me keep track of my library. It is really worth the price and then some! !

The books you lend are usually the ones you least want to lose. Here's a sure way to track them: the borrower is given a handsome bookmark with your name on top; you keep the stub, noting the title, date, and name of the borrower. Tidy and effective -- it works!
