About the AuthorChris Bell has specialised in professional recruitment for over 25 years and has worked for some of the industry's top recruitment brands in the UK, Australia and Canada and has helped place 1000's of candidates in roles at all levels all over the world. Originally from the UK Chris has travelled extensively across the USA, Canada, Europe, South Africa, South East Asia and has also lived and worked in Australia for 11 years. Over the years Chris has started a number of new recruitment business ventures from start up to becoming successful businesses on behalf of corporate recruitment firms in the UK, Australia and Canada and now runs his own international consultancy The Design and Construction Recruitment Company www.dcrc.co.uk Chris decided to write this book and also establish The Job Interview Game Changer after constantly being asked by candidates, friends and family why recruitment agencies never respond or give any feed back to their applications or CVs and also being asked for general job search advice and how to conduct successful interviews and gain offers rather than rejections, so Chris felt that it was time to finally have someone from "their" side on "your" side.
